

Judy Sizemore is the Kentucky Arts Council's Outreach Director for Eastern Kentucky. In that capacity she has coordinated numerous multi-county arts education programs and assisted school districts to align their arts and humanities curriculum with state standards. She is a literary artist and has conducted creative writing residencies, presented professional development workshops, and served as an educational consultant to the Kentucky Arts Council, the Kentucky Historical Society, the Kentucky Archaeological Survey, and Kentucky Educational Television (KET). She has coordinated ten Arts and Humanities Academies for the Kentucky Department of Education and has received the Governor's Award for Arts in Education and the Hambleton Tapp Award for Creative Teaching of Kentucky History. She is the author of over 300 published short stories, essays and articles, five resource guides for teachers, and a book of poetry.